Foreword

Humanitarian agencies exercise considerable financial, technical and logistical power in their mission to save lives and reduce suffering. Accountability is the means through which this power can be exercised with responsibility and legitimacy.

Quality is the totality of features and characteristics of a product or service that bear upon its ability to satisfy stated or implied needs. Humanitarian accountability therefore involves managing the quality of humanitarian action in order that it respects the needs, concerns, capacities and disposition of people whose welfare and safety is adversely affected by armed conflict and other calamitous events.

The Humanitarian Accountability Partnership (HAP) was founded upon the belief that relief agencies should be accountable for the quality of their work to those people designated as “intended humanitarian beneficiaries”. This is not to say that humanitarian agencies must always achieve the highest quality standards in their programmes or that they can be held responsible for suffering properly attributable to the actions of others. However, while acknowledging the primary responsibility of states for protecting their citizens, humanitarian agencies should, within the constraints that limit access and resources, be accountable for the quality of their work to those they choose to assist.

The Humanitarian Accountability Partnership was founded in 2003 to promote voluntary compliance with HAP’s Accountability Principles, designed to promote this vision. To achieve a reasonable degree of consistency and equity in compliance monitoring, complaints-handling and quality assurance certification it was necessary to develop a set of relevant, measurable, actionable and affordable performance benchmarks, set within an explicit framework of shared values that define the quality of humanitarian action for those seeking to comply with the HAP Accountability Principles.

Because the founding members of HAP did not incorporate a statement of humanitarian values in the Accountability Principles, the Humanitarian Accountability Covenant has been developed to provide a simple statement of the basic values against which HAP certified agencies wish to be held to account. These are adapted from various sources including the Fundamental Principles of the Red Cross Movement, the Code of Conduct for the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement and NGOs in Disaster Response Programmes, and the Sphere Humanitarian Charter, none of which were completely suitable in their current form for immediate application in the HAP monitoring, complaints-handling and quality assurance systems.

The HAP Standard is the operational expression of the principles set out in the Humanitarian Accountability Covenant. The Standard includes a set of quality management performance benchmarks for assessing compliance with the HAP Accountability Principles, and upon which monitoring, complaints-handling and quality assurance certification is based. Where the term “shall” is employed, the benchmark is a requirement. Where the term “should” is used, the benchmark is recommended.

In addition, the HAP Standard requires a declaration of agency-specific interests and policies that may have a direct bearing upon the welfare and safety of the intended beneficiaries and other stakeholders.

Quality assurance certification under the HAP Standard will be open to those organisations that fulfil the qualifying norms described in the Covenant.
The Humanitarian Accountability Covenant

1.1 Introduction

The Humanitarian Accountability Partnership’s Accountability and Quality Management Standard is rooted in a set of common values that drive and shape the humanitarian work of its subscribers and against which they have voluntarily elected to be held to account. The Humanitarian Accountability Covenant embodies these core values in a hierarchy of principles, beginning with the fundamental principle of humanity. It is against these guiding principles that HAP certified organisations elect to be held accountable. Because the contexts in which humanitarian action takes place are complex, difficult and sometimes hostile, and the human and financial resources at the disposal of the humanitarian community are often inadequate, humanitarian organisations frequently face stark choices between bad and worse options, where their aspirations to uphold the highest standards of humanitarian action are impossible to realise due to constraints beyond their control. However, for humanitarians the moral obligation to express solidarity with those living in distress and suffering is an imperative that prevails even in situations when an ideal response is impossible. The Humanitarian Accountability Partnership recognises that in such circumstances the best possible humanitarian action will be flawed, but still worthwhile. Therefore, in such circumstances accountability may be adjudged to have acted in good faith and in accordance with the spirit of the Humanitarian Accountability Covenant.

1.2 Preamble:

While:

- recognising that the essence of humanitarian accountability is to respect the needs, concerns, capacities and disposition of those we seek to assist, and to be answerable for our actions and decisions to interested parties, especially disaster survivors;
- respecting International Humanitarian Law, international refugee law, human rights law and other relevant international treaties and national laws;
- reaffirming the primary duty of states to protect and assist citizens in times of armed conflict and calamity;
- acknowledging the duty of care concerning the well-being of intended beneficiaries incumbent upon all those engaging in humanitarian action;
- asserting the right of all in need to receive humanitarian assistance or protection on the basis of their informed consent;
- noting that operational constraints beyond our control can adversely affect our performance,

We commit to being accountable for our actions and decisions affecting our humanitarian work within the hierarchy of humanitarian principles and related performance benchmarks set out below.
1.3 Hierarchy of humanitarian principles

Organisations seeking to comply with the HAP Accountability and Quality Management Standard commit themselves to uphold the principles of:

1. Humanity: the right of all persons to give and to receive relief from suffering, distress and indignity.
2. Impartiality: the provision of humanitarian assistance on the basis of need alone, without discrimination based upon race, ethnicity and nationality or by political, religious, cultural or organisational affiliation.
3. Informed Consent: the intended beneficiaries, or their proxies, understand and agree with the proposed humanitarian action and its implications.
4. Duty of care: humanitarian assistance meets or exceeds recognised minimum standards pertaining to the welfare and safety of the intended beneficiaries.
5. Transparency: all relevant information is communicated to intended beneficiaries or their proxies and other specified parties.
6. Neutrality: refraining from giving material or political support to parties to armed conflict.
7. Complementarity: operating as a responsible member of a broader humanitarian assistance community.

1.4 Performance Benchmarks

Organisations seeking to comply with the HAP Accountability and Quality Management Standard will strive to meet specified performance benchmarks for:

1. Applying HAP’s Accountability Principles through a quality management system.
2. Implementing a transparent public information policy.
3. Gaining consent from beneficiaries or their proxies and specified stakeholders.
5. Improving the competence of staff.
6. Running a safe and accessible complaints handling system.
7. Continuous improvement in accountability and quality management systems.

While not yet the subject of detailed requirements and performance indicators, organisations seeking to comply with the HAP Accountability and Quality Management Standard will pay due attention to:

8. Coordination mechanisms.
9. Gender equity.
11. Ethical fund-raising.
1.5 Declaration of additional interests or values

Organisations seeking to comply with the HAP Accountability and Quality Management Standard will declare additional specific affiliations, interests, values and policies where these may have a direct bearing upon the welfare and safety of beneficiaries and specified stakeholders. These may include, but not be limited to matters concerning:

- Organisational affiliation
- Gender
- Age
- Physical or mental impairment
- Religious or political affiliation
- Technical specialisation
- Conflict prevention and/or peace-building
- Environmental sustainability
- Non-operationality (or working through local partners)

1.6 Qualifying norms

Organisations seeking quality assurance certification under the HAP Accountability and Quality Management Standard will meet the following criteria:

1. A core mandate to provide civil, independent, humanitarian assistance on an impartial, non-discriminatory, non-sectarian, non-partisan basis.
2. Formally registered or recognised as a not-for-profit organisation in the country where it has its headquarters.
3. Compliance with the requirements for financial accountability under the law in the country where it has its headquarters.
The Accountability and Quality Management Standard

The Accountability Principles

1. Respect and promote the rights of legitimate humanitarian claimants
   Commitment to humanitarian standards and rights

   Members state their commitment to respect and foster humanitarian standards and the rights of beneficiaries.

2. State the standards that apply in their humanitarian assistance work
   Setting standards and building capacity

   Members set a framework of accountability to their stakeholders.

   Members set and periodically review their standards and performance indicators, and revise them if necessary.

   Members provide appropriate training in the use and implementation of standards.

3. Inform beneficiaries about these standards, and their right to be heard
   Communication

   Members inform, and consult with, stakeholders, particularly beneficiaries and staff, about the standards adopted, programmes to be undertaken and mechanisms available for addressing concerns.

4. Meaningfully involve beneficiaries in project planning, implementation, evaluation and reporting
   Participation in programmes

   Members involve beneficiaries in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes and report to them on progress, subject only to serious operational constraints.

5. Demonstrate compliance with the standards that apply in their humanitarian assistance work through monitoring and reporting
   Monitoring and reporting compliance

   Members involve beneficiaries and staff when they monitor and revise standards.

   Members regularly monitor and evaluate compliance with standards, using robust processes.

   Members report at least annually to stakeholders, including beneficiaries, on compliance with standards. Reporting may take a variety of forms.

6. Enable beneficiaries and staff to make complaints and to seek redress in safety
   Addressing complaints

   Members enable beneficiaries and staff to report complaints and seek redress safely.

7. Implement these principles when working through partner agencies.
   Implementing partners

   Members are committed to the implementation of these principles if and when working through implementation partners.

---

1 Framework of accountability includes standards, quality standards, principles, policies, guidelines, training and other capacity-building work, etc. The framework must include measurable performance indicators. Standards may be internal to the organisation or they may be collective, e.g. Sphere or People in Aid.
