Resettlement Needs

- 10% of Syrian refugees are in need of resettlement and meet resettlement criteria
- <0.5% of Syrian refugees were submitted for resettlement in 2018 (only one in 20 of those in need)

2018 Self-Organized Syrian refugee returns as verified by UNHCR

- 50,900 Refugee returns in 2017
- 56,047 Refugee returns in 2018

As compared to 2017, there was a 10% increase in verified refugee returns to Syria from the region in 2018. In January 2019, there were 7,674 verified refugee returns from: Jordan (3,805), Turkey (1,827), Lebanon (1,718), Iraq (291) and Egypt (33). Durable Solutions in the 3RP

In December 2018, United Nations agencies and NGO partners released the Regional Refugee and Resilience Plan (3RP) 2019-2020, a USD 5.5 billion plan designed to support national efforts in Turkey, Lebanon, Jordan, Egypt and Iraq to deal with the continued impact of the Syria crisis. Co-led by UNHCR and UNDP, the 3RP offers a strategic, coordination, planning, advocacy and programming platform for humanitarian and development partners to respond to the Syria crisis at regional level and in host countries. It comprises one regional plan, with five standalone country chapters covering Turkey, Lebanon, Jordan, Egypt and Iraq.

The Plan is framed around eight Strategic Directions, one of which is “Durable Solutions for Syrian Refugees”, providing the high-level parameters for the response. Taken together, the strategic directions are designed to collectively enhance the protection of vulnerable persons affected by the crisis, create the conditions and opportunities for dignified lives, build the resilience of refugees and host communities, and strengthen the capacities of national authorities and responders. In the 2018-2019 3RP, Durable Solutions was included as a strategic direction for the first time and it is again included in the two-year plan for 2019-2020. Durable solutions encompasses voluntary, safe, and dignified return; local solutions and opportunities; and resettlement to a third country. In addition, an emphasis has also been placed on access to a third country through legal means other than resettlement (complementary pathways).

The inclusion of Durable Solutions in the 3RP has allowed for an increased focus on the achievement of these solutions for Syrians who have endured protracted displacement. It has put into perspective the issue of return; while allowing for a process of preparedness to take place, it has framed the issue in consideration of the fact that, according to returns and perceptions surveys carried out among Syrian refugees, the majority will remain in host countries for the year ahead. In light of this fact, its inclusion as a strategic direction has facilitated advocacy on the need for solidarity from the international community and the redoubling of efforts in support of host countries, who continue to generously host 5.7 million Syrian refugees. It has placed a renewed focus on the issue of resettlement and complementary pathways of admission to third countries, the inadequacy of current quotas, and the need for greater burden sharing; only approximately one in every 20 people who meet resettlement criteria were submitted for resettlement in 2018.

As well as targeting Syrian refugees in the region, in 2019 3RP partners also seek to directly assist some 3.9 million host community members, particularly through livelihoods and economic opportunities, basic services and supporting the work of local institutions and municipalities.

The 2018 3RP Appeal sought USD 5.6 billion in funding and the plan was 62 per cent funded. Since its inception in 2015, the 3RP has been at the forefront of responding to the impact of the Syria crisis in neighbouring refugee-hosting countries. During this time, some USD 12 billion has been channelled through the 3RP’s 270 humanitarian and development partners to help address the challenges facing refugee and vulnerable host communities, in support of national efforts. Refugee Intentions Survey Between November 2018 and January 2019, UNHCR conducted its fifth Refugee Perception and Intention Survey in Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, and Lebanon. While the findings of the report will be detailed in the next regional durable solutions update, the preliminary analysis showed that the trends remain relatively in line with similar surveys conducted over the last 18 months. While some countries have specific variations, one notable regional trend is that the percentage of refugees who are ‘undecided’ about their intention to return has gradually decreased over the surveys, illustrating that refugees are increasingly taking a decision as to their future plans and whether or not to return.

As a way forward, UNHCR will continue to periodically survey refugees to understand their plans, concerns and needs as related to their continued protection in host countries and planning regarding their future.

Interagency Preparedness Planning for Refugee Return

As an update to the November/December 2018 Regional Durable Solutions Update, by the end of January 2019, the Interagency Preparedness Plans on Refugee Returns were finalised by the six Durable Solutions Working Groups (regional and host country) and the Syria Return and Reintegration Working Group. While remaining aligned with the Comprehensive Protection and Solutions Strategy: Protection Thresholds and Parameters for Return to Syria, each country plan reflects its respective operational and interagency context.

At the time of this Update’s publication, a Regional Operational Framework for Refugee Return to Syria is under review, consolidating the common elements of the six Interagency Preparedness Plans. This document provides an overview of these plans, including their specific sectoral objectives, activities, and existing standards and policies as related to refugee return. The Regional Operational Framework is being finalized in consultation with members of the Regional Durable Solutions Working Group.
