A group of armed attackers struck a camp for displaced people in the north-eastern Borno state, sparking a firefight with soldiers that claimed two civilians. They opened fire and detonated explosives in Dalori 1 camp in the outskirts of Maiduguri, Borno’s capital. Several shelters and the camp’s market burned down. Dalori 1 camp hosts more than 20,000 displaced people and has been targeted three times by armed attackers in the last four years. The latest attack, happening in the capital, underscores the safety and security threats faced by civilians as the armed groups ramp up attacks in several in Borno.
