The impact of unethical brokers is critical across recruitment corridors in the Middle East and Asia, where labour-receiving countries rely on migrant workers. Those recruited across multiple borders are especially vulnerable to exploitation and trafficking into forced labour conditions.