

Somalia: Humanitarian Snapshot (as of 6 July 2017)

An elevated risk of famine persists in Somalia due to severe food consumption gaps, high acute malnutrition and high disease burden. The Gu rains (April-June) provided relief in some areas, but the rainy season was shorter than normal and generally poor, including in areas with high levels of vulnerability such as Bakool and northern Bay regions. Over 760,000 have been displaced due to drought since November 2016. More than 3 million people are being reached each month with humanitarian assistance and protection.

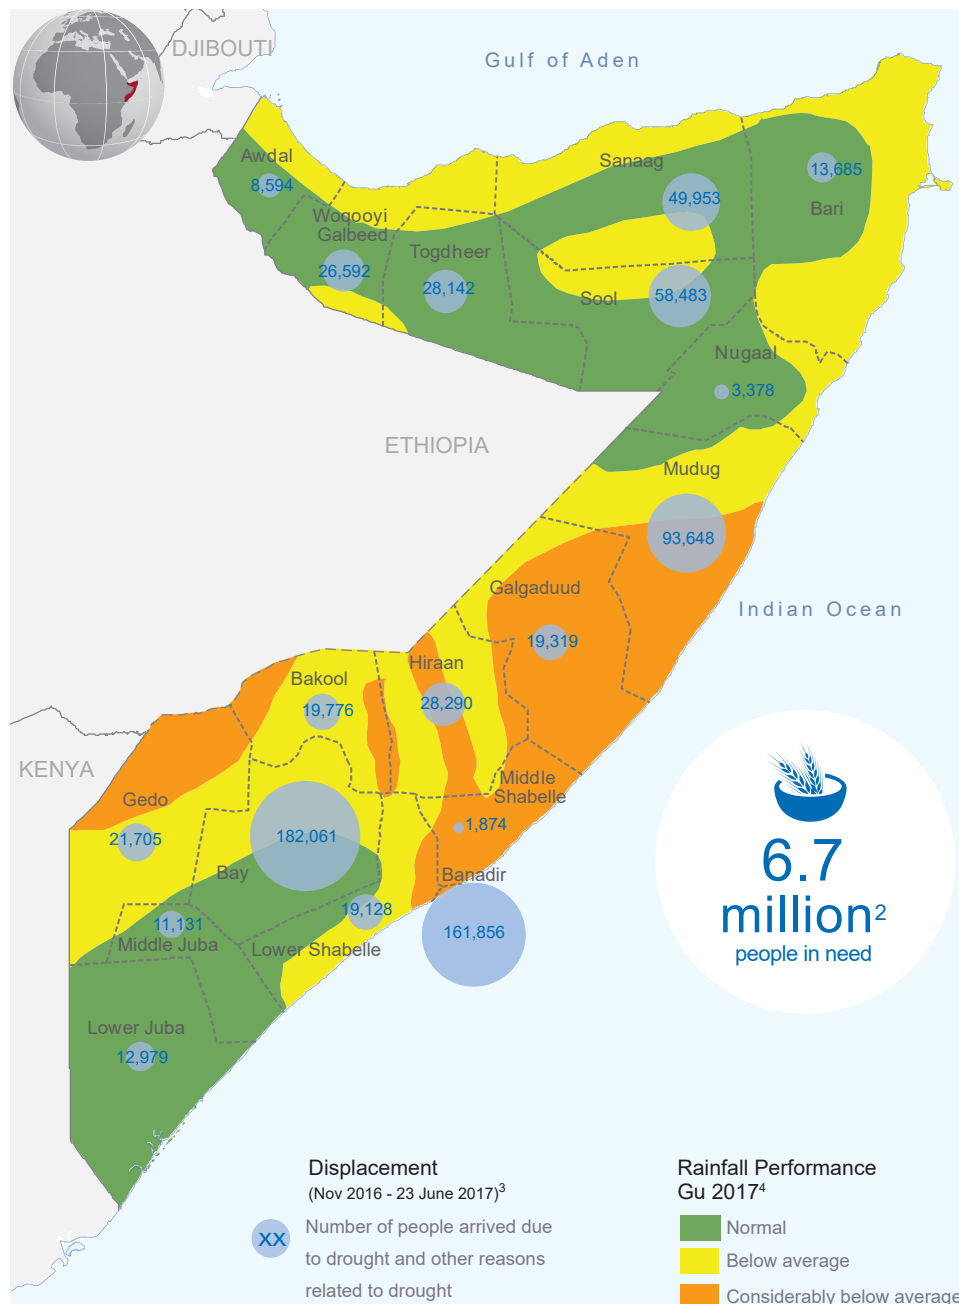

DISEASE OUTBREAKS

AWD/cholera cases and related deaths continue to be reported across the country and the number of cases continues to increase month by month. The case-fatality rate of 1.5 per cent remains above the emergency threshold of 1 per cent. In addition, over 10,000 suspected cases of measles have been reported since January.

CASH-BASED INTERVENTION

The expansion of cash-based programming is central to the famine prevention strategy, and constitutes a predominant feature of the current response.

Estimated number of people reached with cash and voucher programming from March to May (million)

Partners are using cash in different ways, with most interventions addressing food security and water and sanitation concerns. Some are using cash to support girls' education, assist people with special needs (e.g the elderly, disabled, orphans), help refugees returning from Kenya or Yemen (UNHCR), or to purchase non-food items such as blankets, jerry cans, or shelter materials for those displaced.
