More than 1 million people across half of South Sudan have been affected by devastating flooding since July 2020. In response to the floods, funding from the UN’s Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF) and the South Sudan Humanitarian Fund (SSHF) helped kickstart the humanitarian response to people’s needs. Combined, the two funds allocated nearly US$20 million to humanitarian partners to implement life-saving assistance to 360,000 most vulnerable people. The SSHF’s second Reserve Allocation provided $9.7 million for frontline response and prioritized life-saving assistance in the areas of food security and livelihoods, health, nutrition, protection, shelter and non-food items, and water, sanitation and hygiene. The CERF Rapid Response allocation of $9.7 million filled gaps in core humanitarian pipelines and enabled frontline responders to scale up assistance to people in need. The CERF also financed community-based initiatives aimed at reducing the impact of floods on communities, such as repairing broken dykes.

$19.4 million
Total allocations to South Sudan flood response

$9.7M
South Sudan Humanitarian Fund allocations

$9.7M
Central Emergency Response Fund allocations

PEOPLE TARGETED BY SECTOR

Water, Sanitation and Hygiene

360k / 153k

Health

360k / 89k

Emergency Shelter and Non-Food Items

159k / 219k

Food Security and Livelihoods

180k / 154k

Protection

17k / 70k

Nutrition

71k

IMPLEMENTATION AREA

People targeted by CERF funded aid

People targeted by SSHF funded aid

SOUTH SUDAN

Pooled fund complementarities in the 2020 flood response

FAO

WHO

UNICEF

UNFPA

WFP

IOM

UNICEF

UNFPA

WFP

IOM

FAO

The boundaries and names shown and the designations used on this map do not imply official endorsement or acceptance by the United Nations.